for Stand Something

When it comes to high school, you have to make decisions that may affect how others look at you. This is when you have to decide to stand for something. Standing up for what you believe is not always the easiest thing to do. You just have to make the decision that is best for you. Think about what you would want someone else to do in your situation and stand for something.

Kelly Hubbs

"Everyone has their own beliefs, but I believe if you follow your heart you will be right in the end."

Jenna Harden
freshman

How

"It isn't hard to stand for what you believe in. If you believe in anything enough, you will make the right decision."

Do You

Stand

Why We Love (or hate) Our Cars

Jenny Raynor

Many students at Eldon High School have a special kind of relationship with their cars, whether it is their best friend or their worst enemy.

"I love my car!" said junior Bethany Reed (pictured above). "Even though it has let me down a few times, I could never live without it! The best thing about my car is the hot pink pinstripes. Not only do they bring out the black color, they also reflect my pink personality!"

However, other students don't think so highly about their cars.

Sophomore Nicole Montavy (right) said, "You really know you have a terrible car when there's no heater, the volume on the CD player doesn't go down, and you have to break a mile before stop signs! But hopefully things will get better in the spring when I get a new car."

Cool Cars

"The Lynx"

There is no question that my Ford Mercury Lynx is the best car in Adrena. (even though it doesn't have air conditioning and the trunk has to be held up with a stick).

Junior Kyle Gurgley

"The Lacer"

My car is awesome because it goes fast and will and when you shift into 2nd it goes CACHON-CH a BANG!

"The Jizeep"

My jeep may not be the best car ever built, but it's better than the Lynx and the Lacer because its top speed is 60 mph downhill with the wind at your back.

When the game is away and there is a car, students find fun and adventure. Road trips are a big part of afterschool activities. Some get lost and some cars never quite make it there.

Kari Blankenship remembered, "Deanna Boardman, Abby Knof, Erin Caine and I tried to go to the North Callaway football game. We were really excited because we got Deanna's big van, but Abby got so anxious to get in that she fell flat on her face and repeatedly kicked the seats, screaming, 'I hate you guys!' After the temper tantrum, we had an hour wait for one pizza, and to top it off, we completely missed the turn off. Two gas stations and one lucky guess later, we made it to the 4th period."

Eric Harden and Josh Fitzpatrick also had a little trouble, or at least their car did. "Josh and I were going to a volleyball game, and Brandon Stark and Corbet Eidson were following us. Brandon called us and told us we were leaking gas, so we immediately pulled over and caught all the leaking "gas" in a bucket. After we thought we had fixed the leak, we poured the "gas" back into the tank. After a few puffs and sputters, we were suspicious and checked the trunk. We found a tipped over fish tank that my dad had left in the car."

Julie Wiethaupt recalled a Friday tradition. "We always went to football games with the 'Jeep Crew'.

Dawn Erickson drove, Justin Setser and Ryan Farrell laughed at their own jokes in the back seat, and I got to control the music since I didn't know how to crawl in the back. It got pretty cold toward the end of the season with the top down."

As long as you are safe and having a good time, road trips can be some of the best memories of high school.

The 'Jeep Crew'—Ryan Farrell, Julie Wiethaupt, Dawn Erickson, and Justin Setser—prepare for a chilly ride before the game.

"I tried to go to the Salsbury football game, but I didn't think my car was going to make it. I brought food and water, just in case." -Abby Knopf

TEACHERS Now & Before

Caren Kwok

Most teachers surveyed enjoyed their high school years. When they look at their students today, they are reminded of their own days in school. Like students today, teachers had to take tests and complete homework. They also enjoyed before and after school activities.

Mrs. Pratt said, "As far as school and social life go, I think a lot is still the same, wanting to fit in, having the right clothes, right friends, having a girlfriend/boyfriend, being involved with activities, etc."

However, teachers do see differences between the high school students today and teens when they were in school. Several teachers noted the pressures on high school students today.

Mrs. Wyatt said, "More students today live by themselves, are parents while finishing high school, and hold down full-time jobs. We had many of the same activities and often had part-time jobs, but for the most part we didn't pay rent and insurance and food expenses."

Several teachers also commented on differences in student behavior at school. The teachers felt that students do not show as much respect for their teachers. Mrs. Gainey said, "We respected our teachers (sometimes to the point of fear)."

Despite this negative difference, students today have improved in at least one way. Mrs. Hughes said, "I think students today are more proud of their intelligence. We were afraid to be labeled a nerd."

Overall, little difference exists between students today and their teachers when they were students.

Mrs. Simon works with Katy Lacy and Jordon Harrison in foods class.

Mr. Bailey and Mr. Alewine pay for their lunch while talking to Sheri.

What did teachers like in their high school?

"We had awesome pep assemblies!! A lot of times we would have a local live band (students). We would get so pumped up! And it was a big thing to have class competitions. We would cheer for our class. The only people that sat at our pep assemblies were the freshmen because they didn't know any better. We had 'SPIRIT!'"

-Mrs. Hughes-

"I liked the kids that were in my school. Students can make the school great!"

-Mr. Davis-

"I liked everything. I hated to miss school, even if I was sick because I was afraid I'd miss out on something!"

-Mrs. Henley-

"I really enjoyed being a member of the band and the jazz band. The best part was being drum major my senior year. My best friends were all in band. I enjoyed being with them and I was proud to be part of the band. It made me feel like I really belonged to a special part of EHS."

-Mr. Martin-

What is the best thing about older brothers or sisters leaving home?

"I am close to my older sister because we are only two years apart. The major disadvantage of my sister leaving is now I don't have a fashion consultant. So if I look really bad, nobody will tell me."

*Stefanie Webery
senior*

"My sister is my best friend. We are very close. I would hate it if she leaves, although I will get a bigger room."

Tina Surface junior

"Since my older brother moved out I get to be the oldest. So what I say goes. I won't get beat on as much, but I miss the free rides."

*Megan Kretsinger
sophomore*

"I don't know what I will do without my sister. She helps me with everything. We have gotten really close since high school, and I will really miss her, but I know she has to go to college."

*Katie Wilson
freshman*

When Older Siblings Leave Home

Lori Wilson

When surveyed about how they felt about their older siblings moving out of the house, most students had the same feelings. The most common response was that it would be good that their older siblings were moving out because then they would get the bigger room.

The lowerclassmen surveyed were glad that an older brother or sister was moving out because then they would be the oldest and be able to boss their younger brothers and sisters around like their older siblings did them.

But among the upperclassmen surveyed, the majority said that they miss their older siblings that have already left and will miss the ones that are about to leave. The upperclassmen have more respect for their older brothers and sisters than the lower classmen have for theirs.

For the most part all students at some point miss their older siblings when they move away and agree that there are both advantages and disadvantages of siblings leaving home.

"I have always been close to my brother, and now that he is gone it is harder to get his help when I need it. The advantage is that I have more time in the bathroom in the mornings."

*Heather Brake
senior*

"My sister means the world to me and I do not want to see her leave. I just feel like she has to be with me. But I will get the big room."

*Matt Vieira
senior*

What Makes Me, Me

Tara Purnell

What makes you stand out in a crowd? Do you have an engaging laugh? Do you have an unusual hairdo? Maybe you have a unique physical characteristic, such as a birthmark. A number of students in Eldon High School have special traits that make them who they are.

Dawn Erickson was special from birth. "I had 12 fingers and 12 toes when I was born," Dawn says. Now she has the normal ten toes and ten fingers. Her mother had the extras cut off when she was one year old. Dawn says it's hard to bend her thumbs, which affects her ability to type fast.*

Amber Stone says that her special trait is that she has long toes. "I don't like to take my socks off in front of anyone because they may make fun of me," Amber says. Amber says it bothers her because her toes make her trip when she is barefoot. When asked if this would affect any type of career, she replied, "Yes, I could not be a ballerina because for one, there wouldn't be shoes to fit me, and I'd fall all of the time."

Caren Kwok says, "I could eat three Big Macs in a row." Caren has been eating like a pig since she moved to America. "It's because I love American food," says Caren. When Caren makes a trip to KFC she can eat five cups of mashed potatoes, three chicken legs, two chicken breasts, and three biscuits.

Don't ever think that you are the only one who has an unusual trait, we all do.

Freshman Amber Stone displays her unusually large toes.

Dawn Erickson has a bit of trouble typing her paper.

(Above) Caren Kwok shoves her mouth full of food. (below) Caren Kwok still shoving her face full of food.

Procrastinating Teens

Tasia Thorne

Procrastinating is very common, especially among high school students. A survey of students revealed guys tend to put things off more often than girls do. Surprising, huh?

Sophomore Kevin Dock admits that he procrastinates. He confesses, "I do know that I put off things a lot. It really is a bad habit, and I need to quit before it's too late."

Some students believe that the mornings in the cafeteria are for homework.

"I rarely do my homework the night I receive it. I do most of my work in the mornings before school starts. That's what the mornings are for, right? Any work that I don't get finished I do in my other classes," admits freshman Aaron Salisbury.

Senior Adrienne Guthrie has the best attitude toward procrastination. When asked what some of the consequences were of procrastinating, she replied, "You rush through things too quickly at the last minute, and you don't do as well as you could have. Sometimes you might fail to turn in anything at all and get a zero. That's why I do all of my work the day it is assigned."

Is someone there?

I didn't know that our school had a ghost. It is kind of exciting.

-Katie Wilson

My sister, who is a senior, told me about her my freshman year, but I don't know the real story.

-Lisa Webery

Ghosts scientifically can not be proven.

-Ian Garbie

I have never seen her, but I think that she is real.

-Brett Dawson

Facts About Maude Allee

- She was born Maude Franklin
- She was married in the year 1906 to Warren Logan Allee
- She is buried in Forest Hill cemetery in Kansas City, Missouri
- She had two children
- Her old house was located in the vicinity of the fine arts building
- Her house was used as the home ec room for a number of years
- There is no evidence that she was ever buried anywhere on the school property

To prove or disprove if Maude Allee haunts our school, four students—Deanna Boardman, Kari Blankenship, Kelly Hubbs, and Katie Taylor—and our assistant principal Ms. Miller spent the night at the school.

The girls met at the school at ten o'clock, and as they entered the building they locked themselves in. They set up camp in room 217. After they got everything in the room, they grabbed their flashlights and a video camera and went out to search the school for Maude.

What they found was not what they expected—empty closets, dark classrooms, and deserted tunnels under the school, but no Maude. Well, as far as they could prove scientifically, there was no ghost, but personally they have to admit that some weird things started to happen when they all gathered back in room 217. As the group of 5 started to play a card game to pass time and just wait and see if anything would happen,

Jeff Creasy believes that supernatural things occur in our school.

Room 217 a history school from the wishes mouse in clock in backward tended and at a

Kelly H some z being c Maude

Maude Experiences

Room 217 has had quite a history with our school ghost. A teacher from the past, who wishes to remain anonymous, has seen the clock in that room run backward for an extended amount of time and at a very fast pace.

The main hall in the ag and art department was one place that the cheerleaders from '92 did not like to visit at night because they believed they saw Maude in that hallway.

Janitors are often here alone late at night. They have heard strange and loud noises in the ag shop. When going to investigate they could find nothing out of place.

Kelly Hubbs catching some zzzzz's without being disturbed by Maude the ghost.

there was a loud bang down the hall. They all jumped to see what it was, but there was nothing there. Ms. Miller said it sounded like the front door by the counseling office. When they went to check the doors, they were still locked. So they went back down to room 217 and started to play the card game again. Then Deanna Boardman jumped from her chair and said it felt like someone or something was tapping her chair. They all turned to look, but nothing was there. There was no good explanation for it all, so that was their first encounter with Maude.

They don't think that anyone will ever be able to prove if Maude Allee or any other ghosts really do exist, but their explanation for all of the out of the normal things that happened that night was Maude's doing. So believe it if you like, or disbelieve if you must!

Kelly Hubbs & Katie Taylor

What You Believe

- 60% believe in ghosts.
- Only 47 out of 100 people polled have heard about our school ghost.
- Out of those who have heard about her only 22 believe that she is in our school.
- Students say that a total of five teachers have talked to them about Maude being in our school.

I'd like to see the legend continue throughout the years so that all students know about our school ghost.

-Mr. Haley

I was a little dissappointed when Maude didn't show us a more lively night.

-Mrs. Miller

I don't personally believe in our ghost, but I have friends from high school who do.

-Mrs. Henderson

Do I believe in ghosts? Yes, no, yes, no, well maybe, but not in the same sense as other people.

-Mr. Herren

GYM RATS

Martin Ernst

Most students get serious or involved in weightlifting during their freshman or sophomore year. School is a good place to practice in addition to lifting at home.

Sophomore Regan Wilson said, "I lift daily at school and at home occasionally."

Some people participate in weightlifting competitions and have done very well. Dawn Erickson competed last year and admitted, "It was just fun to hang out with the guys."

Players also profit from their practice because "it improves your game performance," said Erin Calne.

The weight-lifting goals of the students is of course to move up the weights they're already lifting. The weights differ from student to student, from at least 20 pounds up to 80 pounds. "I hope to move up 80 pounds on bench & squat this year," said senior Josh Fitzpatrick.

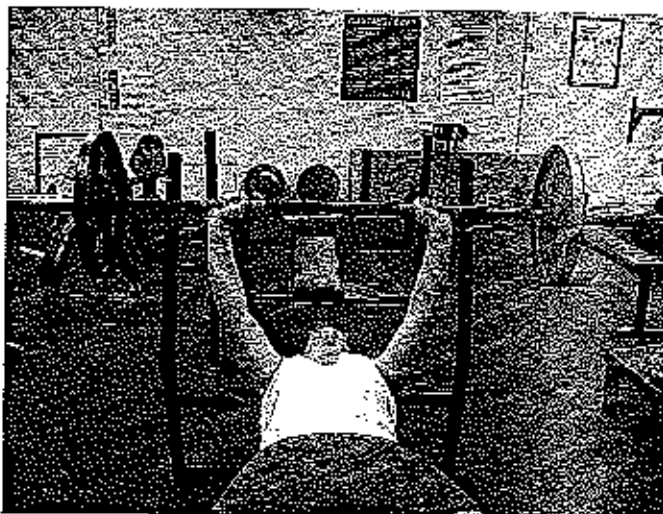

Whether these aims are achievable or not depends on how often students have the opportunity to lift during the week. 4-5 times is very common because those students who lift are mostly involved in strength training classes.

In general, all students hope to reach their personal goals for this year and just enjoy their time in the weight room with their friends.

MUSTANGS

Junior Brad Miller works with the curls to strengthen his upper body.

Kissing, hugging, holding hands . . . How much is too much?

PDA

Elizabeth Gibbs

How far is too far when you're in school? When asked most students said keep it to a minimum. A little kissing and holding of hands is okay, but they drew the line at that.

"School is a place to learn, not to make out with your girlfriend or boyfriend," said senior Alicia Downen.

When asked if they minded seeing people kissing in the halls, most students said that it only bothered them when they had to see people hanging on each other.

"When I walk down the halls, I try to ignore the people making out," said sophomore Gabe Roe, "but it is very hard because it is distracting."

So to please other people, if you're one of those people that clings to your boyfriend, or girlfriend, don't do it at school. Please save it for home or dates.

One of the season highlights was in Waynesville. The JV cross country "ran" away with first place over all, with a little help from Regan Wilson's first place. George Price also earned a first place at the meet at the varsity level.

Nation Shocked by September 11th Attacks

At 8:45 a.m. on Tuesday September 11, 2001, a hijacked passenger jet, American Airlines Flight 11 out of Boston, crashed into the north tower of the World Trade Center. Just eighteen minutes later, a second hijacked airliner, United Airlines Flight 175 from Boston, crashed into the south tower. Forty-five minutes after the initial attack, a stunned nation heard President George W. Bush announce that the country had suffered an "apparent terrorist attack." For the first time in history, the FAA halted all flights at U.S. airports. However, the remaining hijacked planes were still in flight. At 9:43 a.m. American Airlines Flight 77 crashed into the Pentagon, and at 10:10 a.m. United Airlines Flight 93, also hijacked, crashed in Somerset County, Pennsylvania. Officials originally feared the death toll would be over 6000. After months of searching through the rubble, the final count was much lower.

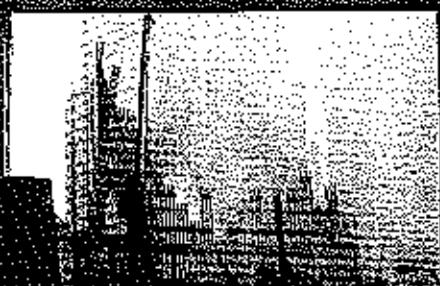

Shocked by the events unfolding before them, many classes spent the day listening to the news briefings on the radio or watching the news accounts on T.V. Students without access to either of these called relatives, trying to find out what had happened.

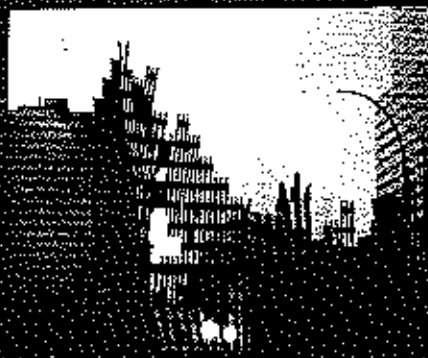

When Sept. 11th happened, I was worried about my family who lives in New York. When I got the call from them, I felt a little relieved, but I was also angry at what happened and hope they find bin Laden and give him the worse torture ever!
