Remember.

We all have certain moments we will never forget. While waiting in the lunch line, cramming for a test, or becoming embarrassed in class, we live the moments. As we mold the clay for an art project, score the winning point of a game, or develop an experiment to prove our science project's thesis, we Create the moments. And when looking back on winning district sports, walking the prom, or being handed a diploma, we Remember the moments. Going through life we live, we create, and we remember our moments — at Elton High School.

Courtwarding 2005

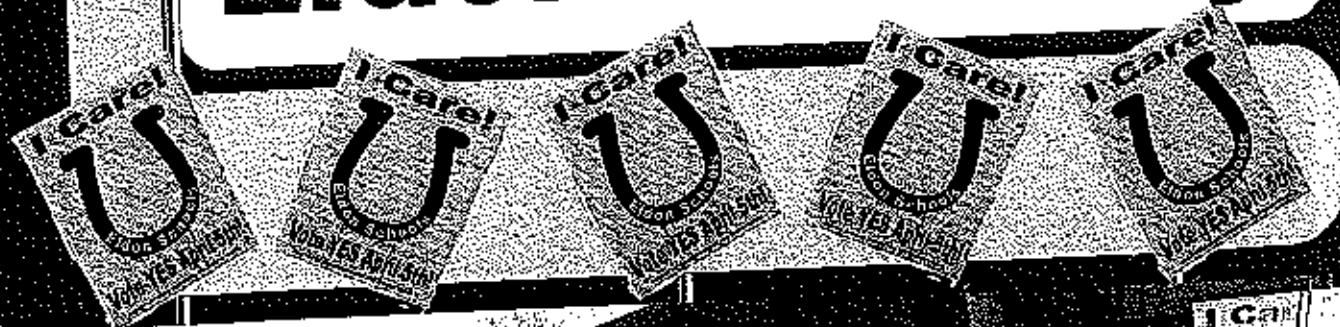

Courtwarding 2005 kicked off with the EHS student body meeting Mr. Hypnotist. Approximately 20 students got the chance to be hypnotized. The assembly ended with the crowning of courtwarding king Matt Box. In between games EHS crowned Sarah Cox as the 2005 courtwarding queen. The big game pitted the Eldon Mustangs against the Tipton Cardinals. Eldon outscored the Cardinals 61 to 44 and captured the victory. The courtwarding celebration concluded with the dance in the commons.

FOR SCHOOL LEVY

Eldon Students Show They Care

1. Let one of the many "Vote Yes" signs placed around town. This one is hanging outside Capital Region Medical Clinic.
2. Senior Doris Decker places her sign.
3. Freshman and seniors tie into the Fine Arts Auditorium to get the facts about the levy from Dr. Hill in an informative meeting.
4. Seniors Keri Munn, Sarah Cox, and Colleen McDavitt along with senior Cash Duvvdy assemble "I Care" signs to distribute to the community.
5. The Doran Shop owners show the community they care by proactively displaying signs outside.
6. Residents of Lynn St fill every yard with signs.

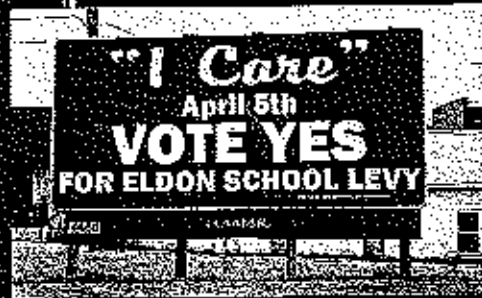

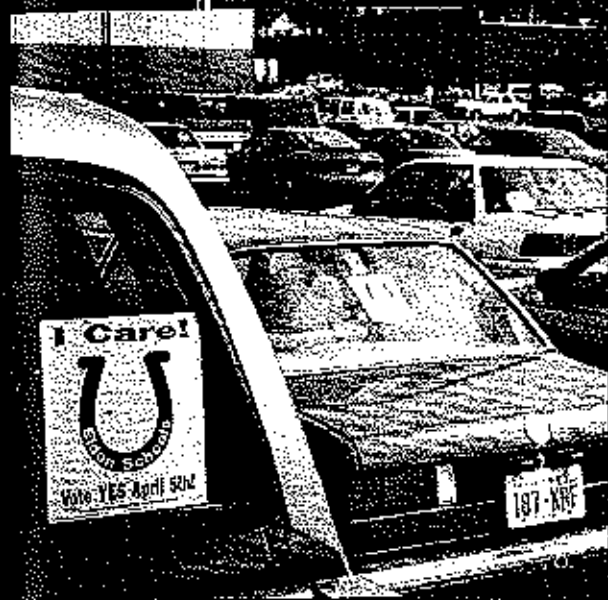

Eldon Taxpayers Vote No

On April 5, 2005, the Eldon R-I School District proposed a $-39 levy increase to offset reduced state funding. The district saw this as a necessary measure because it has deficit spent for the last three years. An "I Care" Committee was formed to gain support. It wasn't long before a counter-committee came about to convince taxpayers to vote no. What started out as two groups of people sharing their opinions, quickly turned into a political war. The opposing group inflated administration pay and numbers of administrators to influence voters. The campaign was filled with controversy, and about 3,000 voters cast ballots on April 5. The levy failed by 139 votes. However, it wasn't over for many. Disappointed community members voiced their opinions in The Eldon Advertiser the next week, and the district made plans to present the issue again on the August ballot.

Tax Levy

Getting the Facts and Spreading the Word

After the informative meeting, Alex Tina Sharwell asks Dr. Hull a few tough questions about the levy. The student protests but is filled with the ears of students who care. They remind everyone to vote yes by placing "I Care" signs in their windows.

Across from Eldon Drivethru "I Care" Committee members established a billboard to make a lobby in the community.

Student Council President Collins McDevitt, senior, urges students to help pass out flyers urging voters to pass the levy.

Senior Andy Harmon waits for Dr. Hull to answer his question at the meeting.

Students Create Opinions About the Tax Levy

I was in favor of the tax levy because the school district was not enough money to resolve the school's problems. If a levy is to be proposed, make sure it will raise sufficient funds to remedy the school's problems. There isn't another levy to pass a year later because that could be more expensive than a deficit.

Senior Mark Carlson

ON ELDON R-I LEVY INCREASE

• VOTE NO

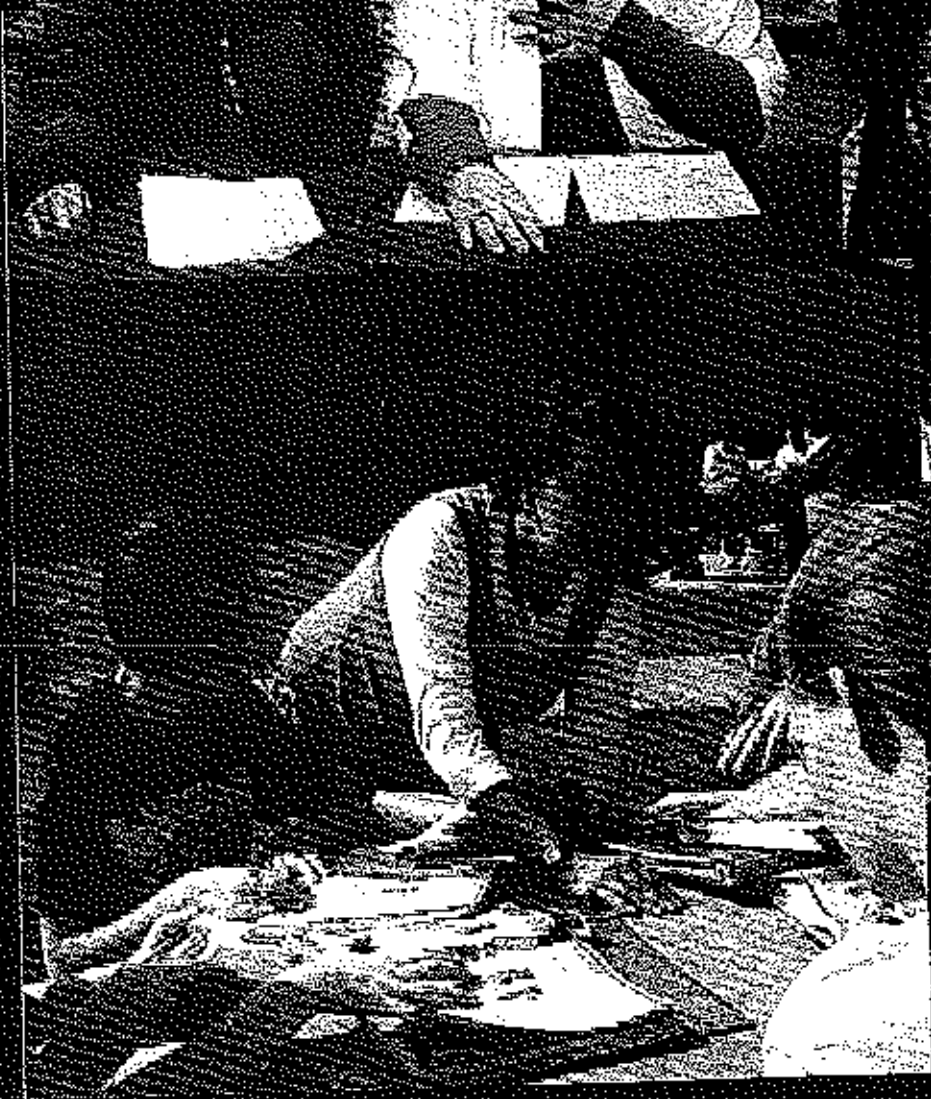

APRIL 5th

Strategically placed a block from the high school, opposers of the levy past a sign in their yard.

I was in favor of the tax levy (it doesn't bother me) that people voted no as long as they know the facts about the levy.

"I was so in love with my band director when I was in 7th grade. I was small, skinny, knocked-kneed, flat chested, and tomboyish. He was fresh out of college, handsome, and lovely to look at all hour in hand. We were getting a donation of old band uniforms from the high school, and Mrs. Tipton (a band mom) was trying to find a pair of pants that I could wear. Mrs. Tipton and I were in an ante-room and she was so weary of trying to find pants for my scrawny, wiry body. Mr. Brady knocked on the door to ask Mrs. Tipton a question about how she was doing on the uniforms. She opened the door while holding out the waist of these huge pants, and as he handed her a clip-board with names and sizes, she let go. The pants fell to my ankles right there in front of the love of my life! I was sure my little, hairy chicken legs and my blue panties burned into his smiling blue eyes. The mortification has scarred me for life."

Tuning Up for Tests

What do you think about tests?

1. Teddy Eden, junior

"Tests are tricky. Sometimes you're ready; sometimes you're not. Sometimes you think you're ready, but you're really not. For me I'm not really ready for tests."

2. Shane Jenkins, senior

"Well, I wouldn't mind them if I could pass them."

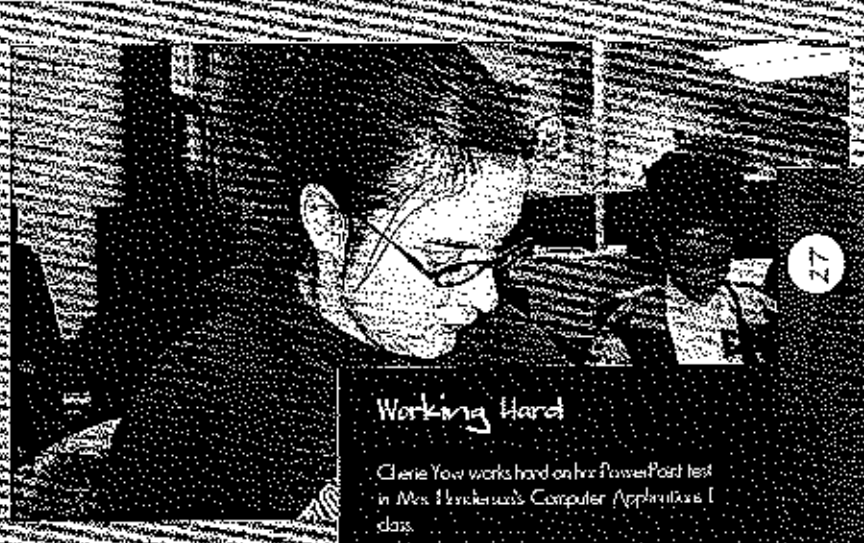

3. Robert Williams, sophomore

"Tests are important. They are a test of knowledge of what you have done or learned. It's all about the name, tests."

4. Marcus Smith, freshman

"I personally do not like them, but I do understand why they are given, and I know that you have to take them. I have never done great on them, but it happens."

Clare You works hard on her PowerPoint test in Mrs. Henderson's Computer Applications I class.

On the Road Again

Cassidy White takes a young group of sophomores, including Ayva Cox, Drew Crema, and Tyler Schmidt, to the Cavanaugh Center to take the PLAN test.

Hands-On Learning

My Precious

Sophomore Cameron Watkins holds a lizard during Mr. Hampton's 4th hour biology class. "I think holding the lizards is cool because it is a hands-on activity," reports Cameron. Mr. Hampton brings in various reptiles every Friday and allows the students to interact with them after their weekly quizzes.

Stand & Deliver

"I like giving demonstrations because it helps me understand what I am doing and gives other students the opportunity to see it as well," says freshman Clarissa Blankenship. She is pictured here as she shares her dream for America during a persuasive speech for Mrs. Moran's third hour English I class.

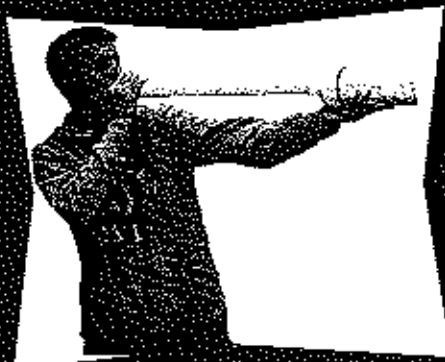

No Alveol

Ready, Aim, Fire

After constructing his potato gun, senior Anthony DeGaia offered birds a different way to "test" the physics of his creation. Students in Mr. McKinley's 2nd hour physics class made potato guns as part of a laser hands-on learning experience. "I enjoyed making potato guns because it was nice to have fun while applying physics."

LEARNING BY DOING

by Sarah Cox and Jamie Burchitt

Academics is the part of school that most students remember as being long and boring and is associated with dull assignments and seemingly pointless readings. However, learning, whether it is touching a lizard, testing a tree or participating in an educational argument, can actually be fun. Students all around the high school participate in hands-on activities daily as an alternative to routine classwork. According to Mr. McKinley, "Hands on activities allow students to visualize the principals they are studying."

Academics

Seesnakes!

Just like a classmate that they might never want to kiss, the man Snake studied as the host of a snake during Mr. Hampton's biology class. She said that it was his last experience holding a snake, but she enjoyed the activity as an alternative to classwork.

Bush or Kerry?

Seniors Lindsey Corbett, Kate Burke, Tyler Newell, Kaitie Wickamp, and sophomore Danielle Bennett participate in a mock political debate in Mr. Hamann's Controversy class as a class in celebration of the 2004 election.

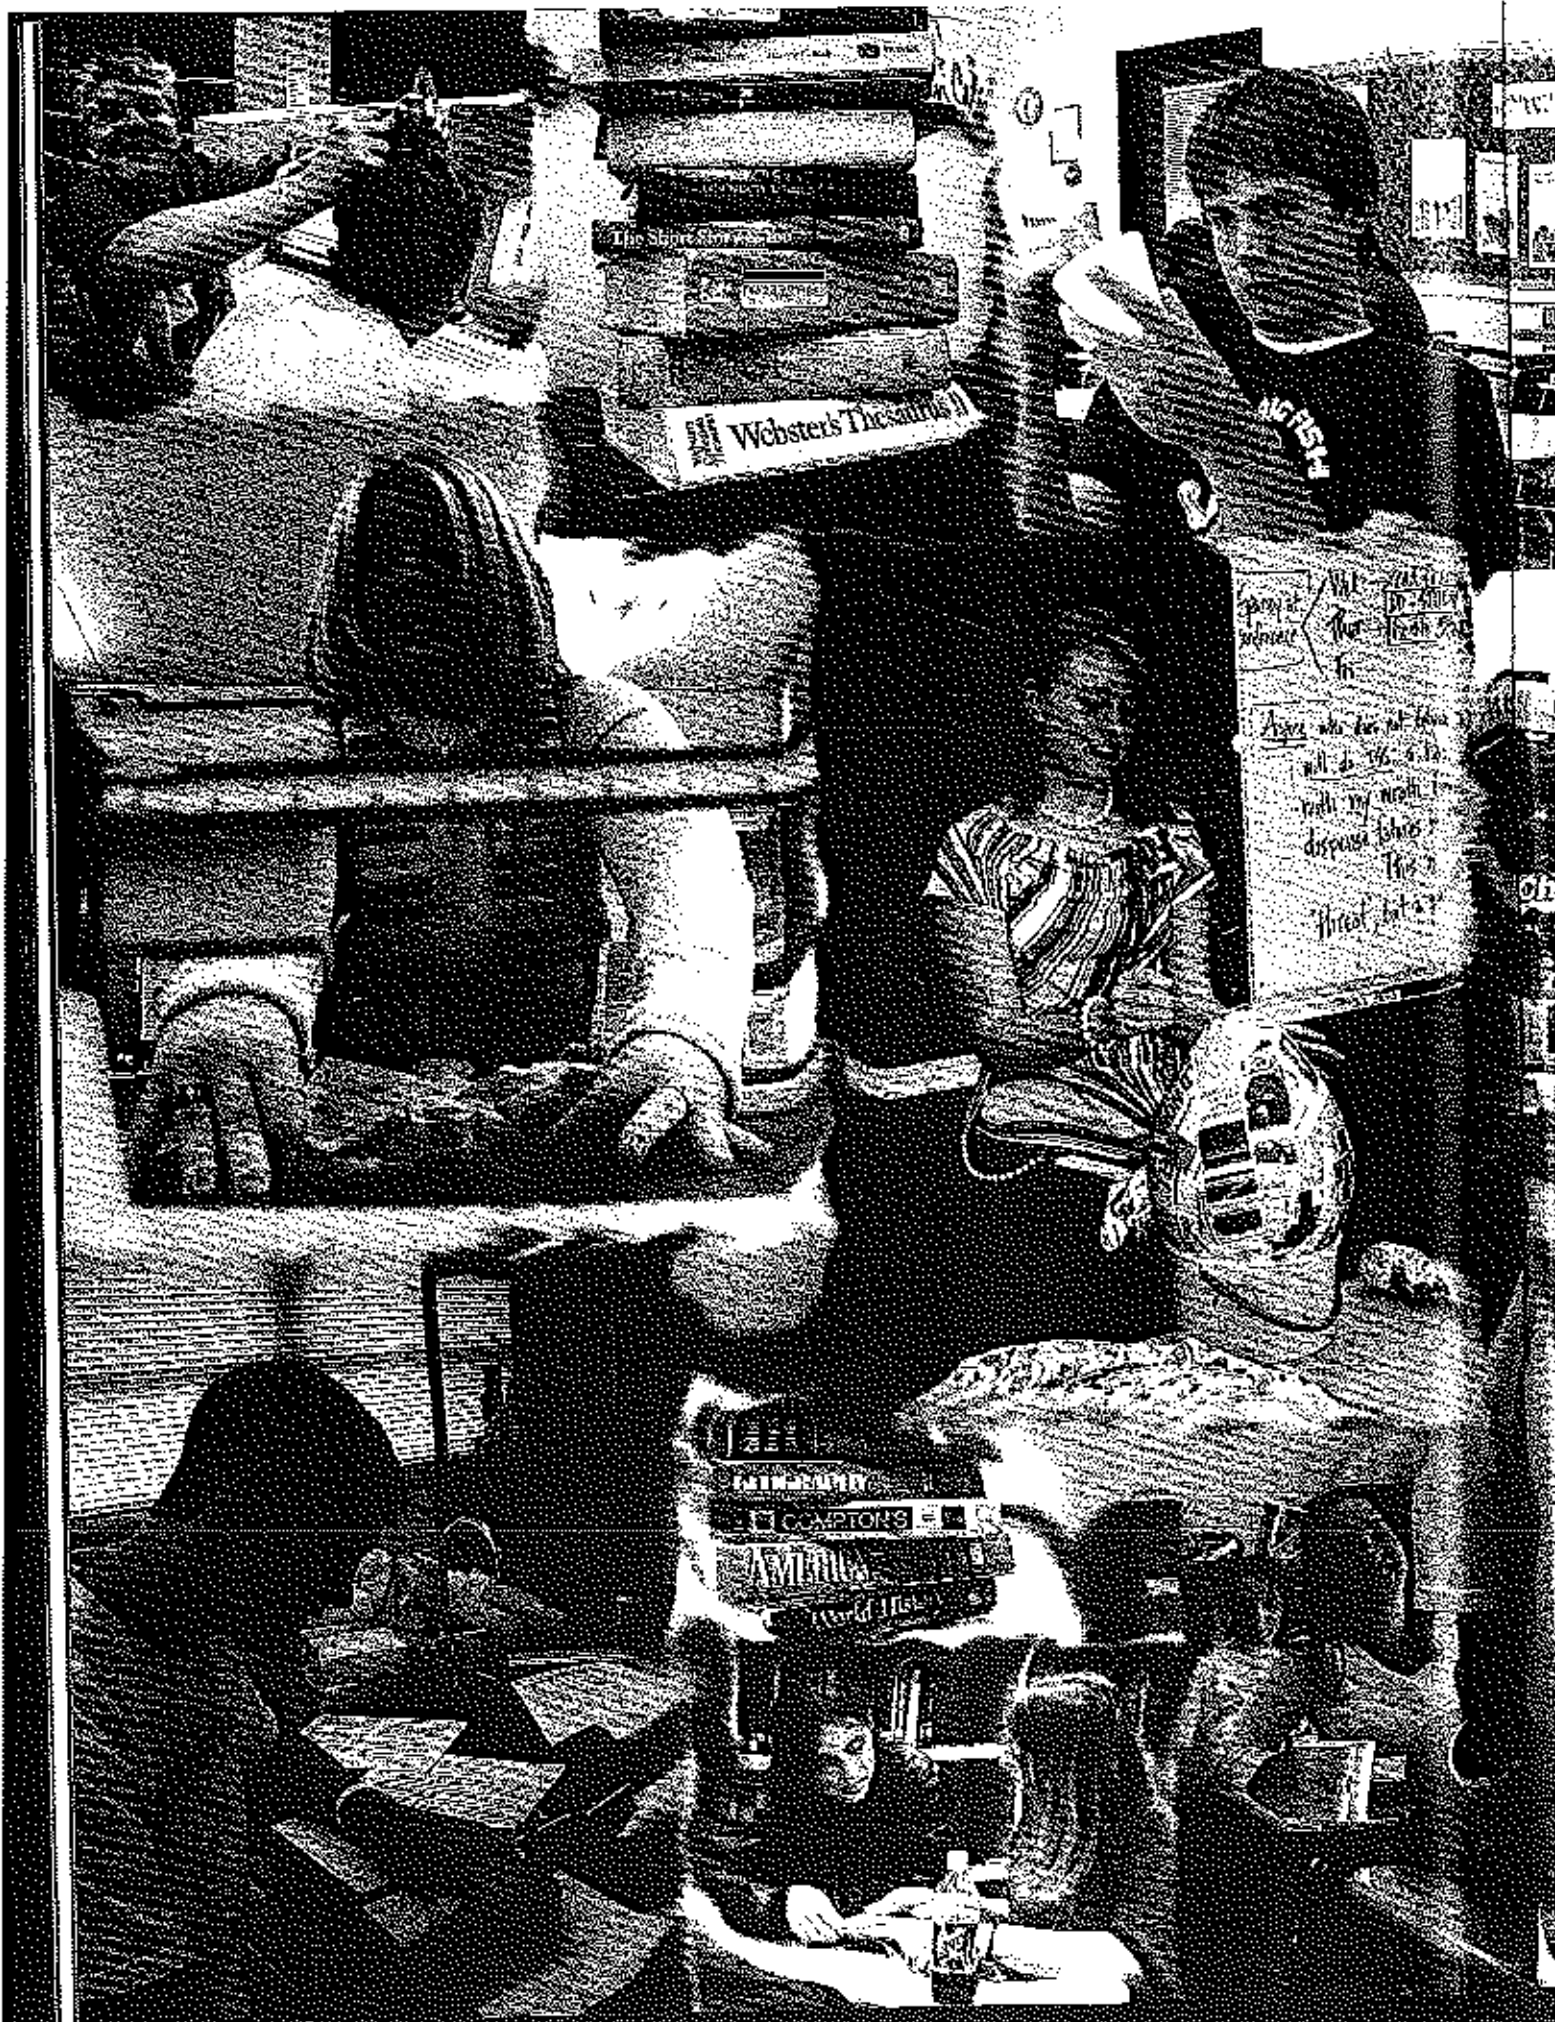

"Boring" Trees

Last hour Ag Science 2 students participate in an outdoor hands-on activity demonstrated by Ms. Crawford. Sophomores Cole Lodge, Drew Cooper and Travis Thompson use a tree borer to determine the age of the tree and if it has any diseases.

All Tied Up

Sophomore Jordan Baker demonstrates the art of taxidermy in Jessica Wynn's class during her speech to inform in Mr. Bailey's class. Other speeches included how to take care of a cat and how to perform taxidermy.

Set it. Spike it. That's the way we like it! 1. Caitlyn Park and Jenny Johnson prepare to receive the ball during a freshman volleyball game. 2. Brittany Hale, Emily Coyle, Maroon Lorenz, Janice Coyle and other members of the JV volleyball team anticipate their own game while watching the freshmen play. 3. Freshman volleyball members Jenny Johnson, Samantha Wells, Bealyn Wilson, Caitlyn Park, Jolynn Campbell, Courtney Olson, and Emily Oberreitler look tough before their game in order to intimidate their opponents. 4. Sophomore Tiffany Blain bumps the ball while sophomore Brady Coyle is on "ball boy." 5. Seniors Kaitlyn McDowell and Sarah Cox watch as sophomore Erin Oberreitler receives the serve. 6. The volleyball team gets a pep talk from captains Kaitlyn McDowell and Keri Mueller, seniors, during their pregame warmup.

The Coach The Player The Fan

The Coach: Coach Henderson says it was a hard season to win the title. "It was a long season, but we worked hard and we were determined to win it. The team was together and we worked through it. The season was a hard one, but it was also a great way to finish the year. We were proud of our team and the fans who supported us." — Coach Henderson

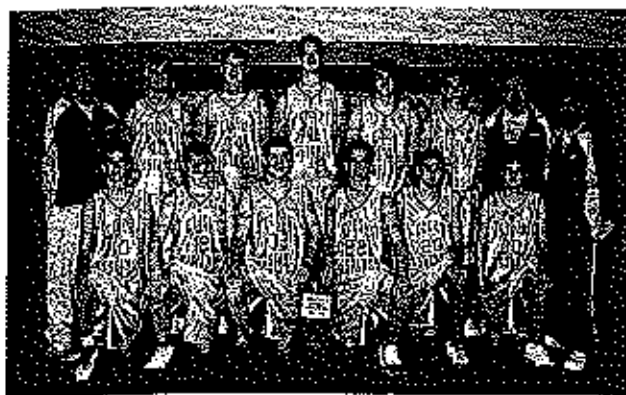

The Player: Junior Curtis King says he had a great season. "I was the right to play that year, and my point guard. I was a great player and I had a lot of fun. I was a great player and I had a lot of fun. I was a great player and I had a lot of fun." — Joe McDevitt, senior

The Fan: Senior Joe McDevitt says he was a really fun season. "I was a really fun season and I had a lot of fun. I was a really fun season and I had a lot of fun." — Jeremy Harker, senior

1. Senior Joe McDevitt knifes to pass the ball around an Orange defender. 2. Seniors sport the new District shirts and painted lines at Section 23. 3. Senior Jeremy Harker looks to pass between two Eugene defenders. 4. With the help of junior Jordan Blansett, senior Jarrison Clemens manages to trap a Fulton player in the corner. 5. Members of the JV team go back on to the court after a time out.

The golf team may not have won state this year, but they will never lose to the school's varsity football team.

I will never forget my first experience in the beginning of my varsity career. It was a great experience and I will never forget it.
